COMPLIANCE & DATA PRACTICES

VERSION 1.0

LAST REVISED ON: NOVEMBER 09, 2026

This Compliance & Data Practices Statement explains how WunderCorp, Inc. presents its legal documentation, privacy contact paths, and certain merchant-integration responsibilities. It is a review draft based on documentation available November 9, 2026. It does not assert a security certification, an independent audit, or approval of any Shopify protected-customer-data request.

1. SCOPE AND ACCOMPANYING DOCUMENTS

This statement concerns WunderCorp websites, applications, APIs, infrastructure, developer tools, downloads, integrations, and related Covered Services. Product-specific contracts and disclosures may apply only to the features actually offered. Read this statement with the Website & Product Terms of Use (https://wundercorp.co/terms) and Privacy Policy (https://wundercorp.co/privacy), including their product supplements.

2. PRIVACY ROLES AND MERCHANT RESPONSIBILITIES

For website, account, support, subscription, and security activities, WunderCorp may act as a controller or business. For merchant-configured features, including Telemio Shopify integrations, WunderCorp may act as a service provider or processor on a merchant's behalf. The merchant generally determines the permitted purposes, configuration, notices, lawful basis, and consent choices for information collected from its storefront. The actual legal role depends on the service and applicable law.

3. DATA MINIMIZATION AND INTEGRATION SCOPE

Depending on features enabled, Covered Services may receive account information, technical telemetry, device and usage data, customer-provided content, billing metadata, support requests, and authorized integration data. Telemio is intended to support configured observability and merchant analytics. Its Shopify integration may involve shop and app identifiers, configured storefront events, timestamps, page and product references, and pseudonymous session identifiers. Actual fields depend on permitted scopes, merchant settings, and the deployed configuration.

Customer, order, checkout, and other Shopify records can qualify as protected customer data, including where direct identifiers are absent. Direct identifying fields such as names, email addresses, phone numbers, and addresses should be requested only if necessary, permitted, and approved where required. Passwords, raw payment card numbers, and full checkout-form contents are not intended inputs to Telemio telemetry.

4. CONSENT AND CUSTOMER CHOICES

Merchants are generally responsible for applicable storefront privacy notices and collection permissions. Telemio integrations must be configured and tested against applicable consent and opt-out choices, including analytics, marketing, and sale-of-data signals where relevant. Deployment-specific consent handling, including any Shopify web pixel behavior before, after, and upon revocation of consent, remains subject to production verification.

5. SECURITY AND RETENTION

WunderCorp describes administrative, technical, and organizational safeguards designed to protect information. The exact controls, data retention schedules, event deletion paths, backup handling, encryption measures, and merchant-specific arrangements depend on deployed systems and applicable agreements. These details must be verified before final representations about a particular integration or protected-customer-data control are published.

The Privacy Policy identifies a target of up to 90 days for raw public-download IP logs, subject to stated exceptions. That target is not a general retention period for Telemio events, Shopify data, or all Covered Services.

6. PRIVACY REQUESTS AND NOTICES

To request access, correction, deletion, portability, or other applicable privacy rights, contact gdpr@wundercorp.co. For Digital Services Act or platform notices, contact dsa@wundercorp.co. General support can be reached at hellowundership@gmail.com. Shoppers contacting us about information collected on a merchant's storefront should ordinarily contact that merchant first; WunderCorp can assist merchants with applicable requests.

7. SHOPIFY VERIFICATION STATUS

As of November 9, 2026, the available Telemio review records document a completed documentation review, but production verification was not performed. The protected customer data dashboard questionnaire was reported as completed in draft form; that is not evidence of implementation or Shopify approval.

Before treating Telemio's Shopify protected-customer-data controls as verified, the responsible team must substantiate data minimization, consent and revocation, sale/share opt-outs, applicable agreement and disclosure obligations, retention and deletion, encryption in transit and at rest, and the required Shopify privacy compliance webhooks. This statement should not be interpreted as representing that those checks have passed.

8. UPDATES AND CONTACT

WunderCorp may update this statement to reflect supported products, legal requirements, and evidence from deployed systems. Current public copies are intended to be available at https://wundercorp.co/compliance, https://wundercorp.co/privacy, and https://wundercorp.co/terms after publication.
